Opened: The multiple surfaces of L18452 were removed revealing this sandy outdoor deposit. Limits (N) Baulk

- (S) L18483
- (E) Test trench
- (W) Baulk
- Closed: While the locus was closed with the removal of a distinctive ash layer from L18483 to the S, this matrix continues below.
- Matrix: Clean brown layers with thin bluish grey intermittent bands. One burned patch and lensing out of ashy deposit to S and W.
- Relations: Scarab at elevation 10.84 found beside NE corner of exposed burned patch. E Stern identified the scarab with a griffin/cherub as an Iron I local production.

- bronze tang/pin

In the western section of the 1999 test trench, the matrix of L18489 ccontinues down for 15 to 20 cm above a distinctive fill layer with burnt brick fragment and charcoal chunks. Just to the other side of

а

40 cm wide bulk bordering the northern edge of this locus, the deposition sequence is completely different. No indication of outdoor deposit or the fill with burnt material. Instead the characterisrtic multiple surfaces continue for about another 40 cm.

Importance: high value-scarab and female figurine. LB Pottery
